OVERHEAT: A Promising Second Year Ahead!

Our time in Le Havre for the First Annual Meeting of OVERHEAT, held on January 29-30, 2025 has been incredibly fruitful! The discussions, collaborations, and shared insights have set a strong foundation for the project's future. As we move into the second year, we do so with high expectations and a wealth of achievements—both those already reached and those still ahead.

A highlight of our stay was the visit to ENSM's training facilities, which provided a fascinating insight into how crew members are trained to ensure safety at sea. This experience further reinforced the importance of our mission to enhance maritime safety, particularly in securing container transport and protecting onboard personnel.

Beyond the productive discussions, the meeting was also an opportunity to enjoy great company, excellent food, and quality time together, strengthening the bonds within our partnership. The dedication of our partners and the synergy among participants are driving forces that will undoubtedly propel OVERHEAT toward impactful results.

A heartfelt thank you to ENSM for hosting us in their inspiring space and to all the participants for their commitment and enthusiasm. The journey continues—stay tuned for more updates as we push forward in enhancing maritime safety!
